Spokesman Says Question of War Supplies to Japan
Properly Handled.By ROBERT G. NIXON
(INS Staff Correspondent)LONDON — Anglo-American conversations "of considerable importance" regarding co-operation in the Pacific are under way, the house of commons was told today.No details were given, but a government spokesman admitted
in reply to a question that the discussions have not yet been completed.The brief answer was given by Richard Austen Butler, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, in reply to a question by Col.
Josiah Wedgwood, Independent.
He asked:"Will His Majesty's government
tell what progress has been made in Anglo-American co-operation in the Pacific, whether the Russian, Chinese and Dutch governments are co-operating and are being consulted and whether there is a possibility of America protecting
the Dutch East Indies?"Butler replied:
"The house may rest assured that the importance of contact with friendly governments on matters of common interest is fully appreciated by His Majesty's government.""Certain conversations are occurring which are of considerable importance," Butler said.
Asked to consider the possibility of representation to the United States to prevent export of oil to Japan, Butler pointed out that American prohibitions related only to certain grades but added that Britain was in touch with Washington on the matter.Other members including Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, and National Laborite Sir Henry Morris-Jones
urged that both Britain and the United States refrain from sending any warlike materials to Japan."The importance of the matter is fully realized," Butler said.
"His Majesty's government can be depended upon to adopt the best policy as circumstances arise."Wooster College

'Casey at Bat'WOOSTER — (AP) — Mighty Casey of Mudville who struck out with the bases full is still a highly popular man with students of Wooster college.Following his reading, in the college chapel, of the famous baseball poem, "Casey at the Bat," Charles F. Wishart, Wooster college president, twice had to rise to acknowledge the applause.Urged to read the poem by Dr.
Howard Lowry, formerly of the college English department, who said it was an important contribution to American folklore, Dr.
Wishart said he would not attempt to draw a moral from the poem.
He described baseball, however,
as "the cleanest and most democratic of the American sports."

PrankstersFive youths, all in their teens, will face Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court Saturday, because Mansfield police last night took steps to head off Halloween pranks early.Warned several days ago by Police Chief Meade K. Bates that vandalism acts would lead to arrests, the youths were taken into custody by patrolmen for throwing tomatoes on the porch of a Lily street residence.Earlier police had received reports of other damage by three west side youths.P. L. McNeal, 548 Park avenue west, called officers when he discovered the boys had damaged the grill work of his automobile and put scouring powder
on the body.The trio was rounded up and taken home. Their parents agreed to pay for the damage.Meanwhile, G. O. Gamber, 102 West Dickinson avenue, reported that another youth had discharged an air rifle near his home, a pellet breaking a window.Police also acted as arbitrators
in this incident and the boys' parents agreed to pay for the damage.About 10 p. m. Roy McPeak, 97
Waring avenue, called officers claiming that he was attacked by two youths near his home and his shoes and 20 cents in change taken.Juvenile authorities were asked to investigate the case.DRAFT CLERKS

TRAINS CRASHPennsylvania Freight Cars
Derailed In Collision
Near Wooster.Three employees of the Pennsylvania railroad were injured today when one freight train crashed into the rear of another four miles southwest of Wooster, near Millbrook, at 7:45 a. m. today.Both engines were derailed by the crash and four freight cars on one train and another on the other train left the rails.
The injured were J. R. Miller,
Ward B. Laughlin, and De Valco
LaRue, all of whom were taken to Wooster hospital.Wooster hospital officials declined at noon today to reveal the extent of their injuries or their place of residence.
The accident happened when a fully-loaded freight train smashed into another train as it was taking on water at a water station.The injured were riding in a pusher engine at the rear of the train which had stopped for water, according to reports received in Mansfield.Authorities said that the train which hit the pusher apparently failed to see signals because of the heavy fog which hung over that part of the state this morning.According to witnesses, large sections of the track were torn up.
The pusher engine was telescoped into the rear of the caboose and looked as though it had been folded up like a piece of paper, witnesses stated.
E. W. High, assistant trainmaster of the Mansfield station,
left shortly after the accident occurred to investigate. High had not returned at noon today.

Correspondent Tells Mansfield CrowdDowns Describes Personal Observations of Nazi War Machine.

By KEN WOODMAN

Out of four years in a Europe
squirming on the brink of war
and finally plunged into conflict, Kenneth T. Downs brought to nearly 300 Mansfielders yesterday just one carefully-weighted personal opinion.
"We cannot afford to wasteone single day in bringing our preparedness to a peak," said
the noted international news service war correspondent,
brought here by The News-Journal, to address a joint meeting of Kiwanis, Rotary, Gyro, Optimist, Co-op and Shrine clubs in the Mansfield-Leland ballroom. A total of 236 members of the clubs and their guests attended the meeting.In Mansfield as part of the observance of National Newspaper week, Downs based his opinion on first hand observation of theGerman war machine in operation along the Meuse front in France and on forces which occasioned collapse of the French republic.But before expressing his opinion, Downs related a factual
and impersonal account of what he and other correspondents saw and reported up to and during the fall of France."No one, not even the French can tell you exactly why their ration fell after only 37 days of combat," he declared

IN EGYPT — (AP) — Sudden
activity of Italian desert patrols around Sidi Barrani after three weeks of quiet led British military men to believe today that the Italians are making final preparations for their long-awaited "big push" into Egypt.The British, strongly reinforced by Australian, New Zealand and "Free French" troops which have been streaming into Egypt, expressed confidence in their ability to throw back such an offensive.Five months of war with Italy, during which the British position in Egypt has been vastly improved, have strengthened their confidence.Despite predictions of the Fascist press that Italy would oust Britain swiftly from the Mediterranean on her entrance into the war last June 10, the British still hold both ends of what Italians call "Mare Nostrum" (our sea) and they claim to have broken communications between Italy and Libya.The Italian fleet, say the British, has shown little inclination to come to grips. The British not only retain Malta, at Italy's very doorstep, but they claim to have moved ships through the center of the 90-mile strip of water between Sicily and Tunisia.Thus far Italy's only territorial gain in Africa has been British Somaliland and a narrow strip along the Egyptian coast 70 miles long.Somaliland was given up, the British maintain, in the belief that if they could retain their hold on Egypt all Italy's East African colonies eventually would collapse through lack of supplies.Had the Italians attacked Egypt
last June when Premier Mussolini declared war they would have Greatest danger in this period of sporadic new Nazi raids.The high altar of the world-

was wrecked by an explosive bomb that crashed through the

which had previously been saved

nearby, and a few priceless fur-

FARMERS HERE
PLANT 27,790
ACRES IN WHEAT

Richland Ruralites Finish
Planting; Rain Needed For Winter Protection.

Richland county farmers are nearing the end of their wheat sowing and some of the early planted grain is beginning to show green above the ground.

Farmers in some sections of the county said rain is needed to give the grain a start so it will be sturdy enough to resist cold weather. In other sections, principally in the southern part of the county, recent showers have given the grain a good start.

County farmers are expected to sow about the same acreage as last year. The federal AAA allotment will permit farmers participating in the program to sow 27,790 acres, just six acres more than in 1939, Guy Taylor, county AAA chairman, said.

Farmers must keep their acreage within the allotment limits to qualify for federal soil conservation and parity checks. Non-participating farmers have no acreage limits. They, however, receive no federal money and are barred from federal wheat and corn loans.

With the federal crop program already set up for 1941, there will be little or no change in the government farm plan next regardless of the outcome of the national election next month, AAA officials said.

They said it is probable, however, that farmers who comply with the AAA requirements will receive their government money in one payment instead of two.

River Postoffice
Serves Detroit
Freighter Crews

DETROIT—(INS)—Harbored in the Detroit River at the foot of 12th street, is the tug Oliver F. Mook, the world's only floating postoffice.

The postal-servicing of ships through the Detroit River started in 1895, and on the average the Mook makes 100 runs in 24 hours. Letters addressed to members of the Great Lakes freighter crews arrive in Detroit in care of the Marine Post Office, and are taken to ships as they pass by Detroit.

The sturdy little boat, under contract to the government, is owned by a Buffalo ice dealer for whom it was named, and who spends most every day during the summer riding with the mail crew.

Three captains and nine postal men keep the boat in operation for 24 hours a day until navigation ends for freighters in the fall.

The Oliver F. Mook made deliveries to 27,000 boats last year.

The New Deal has been in the saddle for eight years. Instead of uniting the people, it has aroused internal dissension. Instead of bringing prosperity, it has piled up an enormous national debt. Instead of strengthening defense, it has led us unprepared to the verge of war. Instead of the democratic principles to which it gives lip service only, we now have the greatest one-man power this country has ever seen. There is sinister warning in the fact that despite established tradition, this one man was able to dictate his own nomination for a third term.

CHAPTER VIII

It was this big comfortable aunt who came panting up to Bam's room late in the gloomy Sunday afternoon to find Bam and Peaches, the youngest girls, in an excited conversation with Jocelyn, who was lying flat on a bed, with a warm blanket over her.

"Girls, this room is cold! Why don't you make a fire?" said Aunt Nell, sinking into a chair. "Jocelyn, you're getting a touch of flu, if you ask me." She stretched out a hand, touched Jocelyn's cheek. "Yes, you've got about a degree," she said firmly. "Bam, you go right down and tell one of the boys to bring up some wood and get that stove going. Get Jocelyn a nightgown—get her one of Sissy's, Peaches—and Jocelyn, you turn right in, and make up your mind to it. You're going to stay right there over Thanksgiving, or as long as it takes to knock out that bug, Peaches, you get Jossy's hot-water bag."

It was only when these comfortable preparations were well under way that the older woman delivered the message that had originally brought her upstairs. Miss Fordyce had telephoned to Miss Buck to say that Miss Britton's car was back in the garage, and that Miss Britton was to take it easy and state off that cold.

"Isn't that kind of him?" Jocelyn said dreamily. Physical misery had taken possession of her now; she didn't care much, or realize clearly what was going on. After that a lost day or two slipped by, and they were spoiling her, it hadn't been flu, just a heavy cold, and it hadn't been ripped in the bud. And somebody had notified the office that she wouldn't be back until Friday.

On Wednesday afternoon, when her aunt was asleep upstairs and she was watching Jane's baby, boy, Tim, and Jossy's baby girl, Rosemary, tumbling about in their pen, Philip Fordyce walked in unannounced. He looked handsome and rosy and kind, coming in out of the cold, and he showed an expert friendliness with the two babies.

"You seem quite all right again," Philip said, when she had answered some questions about her little illness.

"I am, I feel—oh, wonderful!" Jocelyn said. He looked at her keenly, and she liked the look, even though it gave her a queer little sensation of fright.

"It was an emotional breakdown, as well as the cold, wasn't it?" the man said. Instantly the conversation plunged down from its surface position to something far deeper. Jocelyn's quick change of expression showed that she recognized it as she responded slowly, with a touch of heightened color. "That was it."

"You spent the night in the car on a rainy mountain?"

"But that wasn't the worst. It was the shock," Jocelyn said. "The shock of finding that what I thought I wanted to do wasn't what I wanted at all. Finding that what I thought I felt for him simply wasn't there. He—he had been the cool one, before he was going slowly mad. And then suddenly it was the other way."

"You'd never cared, really," the man said, watching her.

"Oh, but I had! To think of stopping it all was like having my thoughts—my emotions amputated," Jocelyn explained, with a rueful little laugh. "I've been—sort of—sort of dazed since I've lain in bed, all Sunday and Monday and yesterday, just thinking it over—thinking what a shabby affair it's been all along. How cheap it is to say one takes nothing from the wife, one has a right to friendship knowing all along that no one has!"

"Oh, there was a wife?" the man asked smiling.

"There is a wife!"

"You're an honest person," Philip commented. "My daughter says it doesn't make the slightest difference whether a girl is straight or not."

Jocelyn looked at him in sudden interest. "Norma does? But Norma's only sixteen."

"She was about fourteen when she told me that."

"She didn't?" Jocelyn's eyes brightened in spite of herself.

"What things the youngsters say," she murmured, shaking her head.

"I think it's a lot of talk, myself."

"But of course it is! They don't mean it. And Norma is only a little girl, Mr. Fordyce."

"I know. But Spot's a rather smart educated little girl."

"You don't really think that things have changed, do you? I think that doesn't grow to be decent women today, as they always have and girls who take chances pay some of them in one way or another? But you stopped in especially to ask me? I was—how are you doing in progress, she added, with an apologetic smile."

"I didn't stop in especially. I came on purpose, to correct her."

"Oh? Her color turned up. Something at the office?"

"No. Look here, if you had a dozen years to live, and a little girl would suddenly have a lot of money, what would you do? I don't know, but I don't think you'd put up with her head and the way she'd come out all right."

"I don't know, but I don't think you'd put up with her head and the way she'd come out all right."

crowd, thinks or doesn't think. I do know this," Jocelyn went on. "That the girls—the women in the office are a pretty free-and-easy lot. But it seems to me that a girl who will be as rich as Norma, and with your mother to keep an eye on her—"

"My mother can't do much, except worry and scold and be honest. Mother's satisfaction, she won't play nursemaid to any one's girl. She adored Spot, when Spot was last with us, but that was two years ago. She spoiled her and then bullied her, and Norma had a damnable fraudulence that her mother had sent out with her, who broke up the whole house. Altogether, it was a cat-and-parrot time!" the man said. "My plan now," he went on, "is to open the Burlingame house, move Mother there, settle everything before Norma gets here. The Palo Alto school for French or Italian lessons, and her afternoon walk will be free. She'll meet her old gang, there'll be plenty of excitement for her. Sub-deb things, house parties at Pebble Beach, all that."

"Janet, her mother, has picked out a Frenchwoman to come and be a companion for her, but it seems the child despises her. Norma wrote me in a fury, saying that if I didn't get rid of mademoiselle the minute she arrived she'd run away. She asked me to get someone young and pretty and sensible that she could like, who'd go around with her and understand what it was all about. I've been trying for her old governess, Miss Sanderson. Can't get in touch with her. And that's where you come in," he finished simply.

"That's where I come in? You mean you'd like me to try it?"

"I want to keep her safe," he said. "I'd like to make her so happy here that I could keep her for a year or two, get her safely married to some decent fellow that I know something about. This mamselle, according to Spot, has got a cousin who's a count, and I presume he has an eye on the family fortune. I don't know. Spot met him on the ship, and she says she can't stand him, and that he'd always be hanging around. Well, there's the setup. You think you could do anything with it?"

Instead of answering him she fixed him with a penetrating look, and asked in her turn, with a little difficulty and a heightened color. "What makes you think I'd be a good person to manage her, install a little sense into her? You know all about me, what a fool I'm capable of making of myself."

"Yes, I know all about that," he answered, after a second, and without a smile.

"You think I could do it?"

"I don't know quite what there's going to be to do for you or anyone else," Philip said, with a shrug that indicated his entire helplessness. "I don't know that it can be done. Here's a girl with looks and money and position who shows every sign of wanting to get herself onto the rocks at the first opportunity. She doesn't believe in anything or anybody, as far as I can find out. She wants a good work and she has it safely."

"That's what I want to find out. It occurred to me on Sunday that you might be the person to keep an eye on her. You can go anywhere, she wants to go, understand how things feel. You're young enough to sympathize with her, and yet old enough to run her. If once you get her to like you—that might be the answer."

Jocelyn looked at him thoughtfully.

"I can't tell you, at least, what it means to me to have you feel I could try," she finally said humbly. "I've been telling myself all week that you were the vice-president of the company, and I just one of the office girls, and that it doesn't matter what you thought of me. But it does matter. The only thing is," she went on somewhat hesitantly, "that I don't know very much about girls today. And if I tried this—that you suggest and failed, I'd feel so terribly about it."

"You couldn't fail any more than I feel her mother and I have failed," the man said decidedly. "You seem to me eminently fitted. You're human and the way she's what I'm after. And if it fails why? Well, then, I'll have to have you back with me in the office. Will you think it over, talk it over with your aunt?"

For some reason she could not at the moment define, tears were suddenly in Jocelyn's eyes. Tears she clenched her voice when she spoke.

"I'll be glad to try," she said simply.

"Well, no hurry," he said cheerfully. "Norma'll not be here for four or five weeks. I'll keep in touch with you by the way," he added carelessly. "I talked to your old Dunham yesterday."

"To Kent!" Her cheeks were white.

"A question of a folder for the club came up; I'm on the committee. I thought he might have some idea. He did, as a matter of fact. A very attractive fellow," Philip added, with a smile.

"But I thought he was going to Portland on Monday," Jocelyn said, quickly and uncomfortably. "Maybe he's changed his plans. He was very much upset when I said that you were away from the office with a bad cold."

"I'll telephone him, write him," she said. "I feel so much ashamed of the whole thing. Since you—since you were so wonderfully kind to me on Sunday I'd like to say just that much. Sometimes in offices—"

"Sometimes in offices is right," Philip agreed briskly. He got to his feet. "Well," he said. "I'm very much pleased that you'll make a stab at this anyway. It's a relief to my mind. I'll write Norma's mother that the granddaughter of General Britton has consented to keep Norma out of night clubs and gentlemen's apartments as far as she can."

"You knew about my grandfather?"

"My mother added that bit of information. She knew him in the days when he was at the Presidio. It may smooth your path with her. She's quite a—quite a party," Philip said.

Jocelyn walked with him to the door, gave him her hand.

"You're very kind," she said. "I hope I'll be some help with Norma."

She watched him walk to the gate and get into his car. She had not defined it yet, but there was a great peace in her heart. She said bewilderedly that she felt within herself the spirit of Thanksgiving, consciously or unconsciously, that the man who had just left her had given her back her self-respect, and the feeling was good.

On Friday Jocelyn went back to the office, feeling changed and strange, and restfully indifferent to what went on there, for it had been arranged that she should leave just as soon as a new clerk could be trained to take her place. The noon whistles were blowing when Kent Dunham came suddenly in.

Jocelyn looked up startled, tried to smile. But the expression on his face did not encourage the smile.

"Jocelyn," he said without preamble or greeting, "will you lunch with me today?"

"Ah, I can't. You see, my cousin Tots Partridge is going to marry Rusty Livermore in March, and we're going today to look at silver patterns."

"I don't care what she's doing," Kent muttered, his hard eyes not leaving Jocelyn's face. "Can't you lunch with me?"

"They'd wait for me Kent. I couldn't."

"You could leave a message here."

"We're not meeting here. We're meeting at the store and then going somewhere to eat."

"And that matters does it?" he said bitterly. "You didn't write me. I've been in hell all week. What's the matter?"

"Kent? Not here," Jocelyn murmured, looking about.

"It's empty," he said in high scorn. "Nobody'll hear! Jocelyn, ah, sweetheart," he pleaded, suddenly changing his tone, sitting down opposite her and stretching his hands across the desk, "what's the matter? Where've you been? You don't know what I've been through! I've talked to Lillian, I've seen a lawyer—"

"Oh you haven't!" she protested in so distressed a tone that his own tone changed, and he looked at her in suspicion and surprise.

"Why not?" he asked sharply. "Wasn't that the arrangement? What else could I do?"

"Ah, you shouldn't have done that!"

"Jocelyn, I don't understand this. What has happened?"

"Nothing has happened. It's just you shouldn't have. What did Lillian say?"

"She felt very bad. But she agreed to the divorce."

Jocelyn frowned. It all seemed far away and unimportant and embarrassing.

"I got a bad cold Saturday night," she offered.

"I know. I was worried to death about you. I followed you by the new cut, and got to the bridge before eleven, and watched all the cars go by until one. But you must have passed me."

"No! I missed my way. I was in the car all night, rolled in an old blanket."

"You stayed in the car all night?" He put his head despairingly into his hands, and again with an uneasy glance about she reminded him that they might be noticed of overhead.

"It was all a mistake. Kent—my going over there—the whole thing I had to get out because I felt such a false position—so different from anything I wanted to be. Quite suddenly it all seemed to go—well, flat and wrong, and I wanted to get home. It was a silly thing to do. It was an awful risk, rushing off into that rain, but I didn't think it out."

"You didn't think out what I went through?"

She looked at him knowing what he wanted her to feel, knowing it to be entirely out of her power to respond to him.

"I'm horribly sorry for the whole thing," she said definitely, getting to her feet with an air of ending the conversation. "I'm sorry for your telling Lillian, but I suppose when you tell her it's over she'll forgive you. You said something else like this to me two weeks ago, Kent. Now I say it to you. I'm sorry, and—and it's over."

"You can't just—break it off like that," he said quickly, hoarsely. Jocelyn did not reply. She went to get her hat and coat remembering as she did so the last time they two had been in the office together, and her going out with him into the dreary winter streets, and his walking home with her, telling her over and over again that he was going away, that he must build his life around his new work and his wife now. She felt horribly sorry for him; she wondered if he had felt sorry for her on that former afternoon.

When she came out with her outdoor things on, he was standing at the office widow looking down into the street. He did not turn as she crossed to the door and she went out without a word or sign from him.

It made her feel sorry and ashamed. But there was no worse hurt. Jocelyn could end her office days with Fordyce Sawyer & Fordyce with the feeling that she left that whole episode, and all its attendant emotions behind her. She went on into the new work like a new woman, a stronger, quieter, happier woman, and long before the New Year was well begun she had begun to forget as well as to forgive whatever that two years' friendship had cost her.

Packing her things to leave Mrs. Buck's going over to Sausalito to spend a few days' holiday at Christmas time with her aunt and the big family at Maple Den and presently being picked up by the big Fordyce car and whirled down to chilly, wintry Burlingame, these were experiences novel enough to wipe the past out of her mind; never in her life had she felt so free, so ready for new experiments and experiences.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE

The work of the office of Prosecuting Attorney is composed of two branches, the criminal and the civil.

The magnitude of the criminal work is better illustrated; that in Richland County once every three days on an average a felony is committed. A felony is a serious crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. This branch also includes the prosecution of all cases in the Juvenile Court.

The civil work embraces the legal representation and advice to all county officials, eighteen boards of Township Trustees, and all rural boards of education.

My name is Harold Lutz. I was born, reared, educated and have lived my entire life in Richland County except during the time I attended Ohio University at Athens, Ohio where I graduated in 1929 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and at Columbus, Ohio, where I graduated from the College of Law of Ohio State University with the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1932. Since that date I have practiced law in the City of Mansfield.

I paid for my education by working on the farm, and at the Mansfield Tire & Rubber Co., in the city of Mansfield.

My mother's maiden name was Mettie Straub of Washington Township. My father's name is Thomas J. Lutz of Washington Township, and both now reside at 357 South Diamond St., Mansfield, the same home in which I was born. Both families have lived in Richland County over 100 years.

I am now serving you as assistant prosecuting attorney, and have assisted in the performance of all the duties of this important office.

On September 30th I obtained a leave of absence so I could campaign for the office of Prosecuting Attorney, and acquaint the people with my qualifications for this exacting office.

This year the last name of both candidates for the office of Prosecuting Attorney is Lutz. I only mention this because I believe it should be the duty of both candidates for this office not to confuse the voters.

Again, may I reiterate, my name is Harold Lutz.

That competence is acquired by actual day-by-day experience in the prosecutor's office.

That all prosecutions of crime must be fair regardless of race, color or creed.

That every public servant owes a solemn duty to be courteous to all the people.

There is no substitute for experience in the protection of your person and property.

(Signed) HAROLD LUTZ
Assistant Prosecutor

May I sincerely solicit your consideration of my qualifications to this important office?

TICKET SALES FOR COMMUNITY PLAYS SPEEDED

Nearly 400 of 700 Goal Sold For Season; Bromfield Play Attracts Many.

With the season ticket sale of the Mansfield Community Players scheduled to end next Wednesday night, co-chairmen today reported that approximately 400 had been sold already.

This figure is only a little under last year's total, and by the time the drive ends workers may be able to report a figure that will be close to this year's goal of 700, according to Mrs. H. H. Schettler, co-chairman. She and Mrs. Sherman H. Glessner are campaign chairman.

Mrs. Schettler said today that the premiere of the Louis Bromfield play, "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," had given impetus to the ticket sale this year. The play will have its first staging in Mansfield on Dec. 3 and 4 at John Simpson Junior high school auditorium. Bromfield and his collaborator, George Hawkins, will assist Mrs. E. K. Bacon in directing and staging the show.

Three plays will be given this season, a mystery comedy, "I Killed The Count," and a hilarious comedy of adolescent troubles, "What A Life". Season tickets are $2.50 each and after the drive closes no season tickets will be sold. Mrs. Schettler said. This year season ticket holders may get their seats reserved a day before the seat board is opened to single admission ticket holders.

Tickets are on sale at Tawse's drug store, and persons who wish tickets delivered may obtain them by calling Mrs. Schettler or Mrs. Glessner.

Q. & A. On the Draft

EDITOR'S NOTE: The News-Journal today inaugurates the first of a continuing series of questions and answers concerning draft regulations. This series will appear daily until registration day Oct. 16.

Q. How do persons register if they are away from their home town on registration day?

A. An individual may register at any proper registration place throughout the country. His registration card will be forwarded to his local draft board.

Q. How can a person appeal from the decision of a local draft board? Does one need a lawyer?

A. Special boards of appeal are being set up to decide disputes between draft boards and draftees. No lawyer is needed, a written application being sufficient to obtain a hearing.

Q. May students at university graduate schools or business colleges obtain deferred status?

A. Graduate students must be working for a degree to obtain exemption. Business students must be studying for a degree in arts or science.

Q. Will unemployed workers skilled for service in vital defense industries obtain deferment?

A. No deferment will be granted to unemployed skilled workers.

Q. Will sick persons be excused from registering on registration day?

A. Draft officials will visit all hospitals to register bed-ridden men of draft age. Persons quarantined and those too ill at home to register may do so upon recovery. Local draft boards should be notified of such illness as soon as possible.

Texas County Has No Lawyer, Doctor, Minister, Banker

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP) A county with no lawyer, doctor, minister, railroad, bank, hotel or theater exists in Texas and is named for a man nationally known. It is Borden county and its county seat is Gail.

County and county seat both are named for the same individual—Gail Borden, first producer of condensed milk.

The county is no small one. It has an area of 885 square miles. Cattle raising is its principal industry.

The fact that it lacks professional men, railroad, theater and hotel is one of the many odd things about Texas brought to light by a WPA writers project. The volume reports that overnight visitors at Gail, if not privately entertained elsewhere, are permitted to sleep in the county's unused jail.

Gail Borden is best known for his connection with the condensed milk industry. Before that he had developed a meat biscuit that was used extensively in the Southwest and Mexico. Born in Norwich, N. Y., he lived in Ohio Indiana, Louisiana and Mississippi before coming to Texas in 1829. He published the only newspaper in Texas during the Texas war for independence.

VERY OBLIGING

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(AP)—It was something of an embarrassing moment for Fort Worth Warrant

Officers Rodgers and Johnson when they arrested a negro for failure to pay a $10 traffic fine. The officers' automobile went dead in front of the negro's house. After arresting him they explained their plight. Their obliging captain the officers' car to the city jail. tive used his automobile to push. Try a News-Journal Classified Ad.

STOCKS GAIN AS MART WORKS UP MILD RALLY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market worked up a mild rallying trend today and leading issues regained fractions to a point or so on recent losses.

Among favored shares were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears, Roebuck, Sperry, Anaconda, Dow Chemical, U. S. Rubber, Eastman Kodak, American Smelting and Westinghouse.

Bonds were steady and commodities slightly uneven.

Brokers thought the better action of stocks was due partly to technical factors. Far eastern tension lessened a bit.

Market statisticians noted a flattening out in the curve of new building activities.

Bank clearings comparisons with the previous year, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet for the week ended yesterday, were 13.6 per cent larger than in 1939, but appreciably less than in the week before.

EMPIRE CHURCH ALTAR WRECKED BY EXPLOSIVES

Main Structure of St. Paul's Little Damaged By Nazi Bomb Explosion.

lage in the home counties, surrounding London, demolishing a bungalow and damaging other buildings. There were some casualties.

Only luck appeared to have saved St. Paul's from greater damage.

The main fabric of the great building, built by Sir Christopher Wren after the great fire of London had burned the previous structure in the late 17th century, was not affected, it was said.

There were no casualties.

Men, women and children ten-ment dwellers were buried when a giant German bomb crashed during last night's raid, longest of the entire war, into an emergency air raid shelter in a crowded London area.

Rescue workers were digging
for bodies today many hours after the tragedy. Of at least 36 persons known to have been in the shelter only five brought out within the first few minutes, were saved. They were seriously injured.

Several bodies were removed
this morning and it was feared that all others in the shelter had been killed.

Bombs had crashed on homes,
commercial premises and other buildings in many parts of London. Several persons were killed when they left their shelters and went home for food or tea. Some air raid wardens were killed at their posts. It was feared that 12 women had been killed in an East Anglian institution which was struck.

The bombing of St. Paul's and of the emergency tenement district shelter were among the worst results of the "hammerkrieg" which was steadily intensifying in ferocity.

Only a few weeks ago St. Paul's was menaced by time bombs which royal engineers removed at risk of their lives.

In the cathedral are the tombs
of Wren and of Lord Nelson, Britain's great naval hero.

A high explosive bomb went through the east transept of the cathedral. The tall candlesticks and the beautiful cross above the high altar were obliterated but the choir stalls, designed by Grinling Gibbons; two precious candlesticks designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens and the bishop's throne were undamaged.

The stained glass windows at the east end of the structure were damaged slightly.

The bomb exploded as it hit the roof, knocking a hole at the apex of the choir arch. The damage to the altar was caused by the falling of heavy stone blocks from the arch to the floor 90 feet below.

A commercial firm had built a big emergency shelter trench, heavily sandbagged, for its employees in the only open space in a tenement district. Dwellers in nearby tenements had been given permission to use it at nights.

Leaving their own frail homes,
the tenement families covered the shelter during the hours Nazi planes were raining bombs on London. The great bomb which struck the shelter buried all of them. There was no chance for anyone to escape.

Their homes around it were undamaged except for broken windows and pitted walls.

As in the case of the hospital
the Nazis bombed the day before,
many of them in the shelter
trench were aged men and women.
Maintaining relentlessly the ferocity of their attack, the Germans, after only a brief pause at the end of their night raid, returned to give the metropolitan area its first daylight alarm during this morning rush hour.

No bombs dropped, and word was flashed from the coast that German plane formations, crossing over the Kentish coast, had been broken up by anti-aircraft guns and chased out to sea by Spitfire fighting planes.

The Germans had bombed 40
areas in greater London and towns, villages and country districts all over England and Wales during the night.

Wales suffered the severest attack in weeks. Homes were ruined and gas, electricity and water
mains were broken in one town,
although casualties were reported relatively light.

Hundreds of incendiary bombs
showered on homes in a northwest England town.

Several persons were killed and many wounded when a Nazi bomb struck a Wesleyan chapel in a southwest England town while the congregation were holding an entertainment.

Friendly Dutch Wave To Raiders

LONDON — (AP) — The air ministry said today that British bombers had been given "a friendly reception" by Dutch civilians in the course of widespread attacks on German warships, war supplies and communication lines
from France to the Reich.

Reporting the "friendly reception" of British planes flying over Holland, the air ministry said:
"The pilot of a bomber over Holland came down very low and noticed several civilians waving at him.

"The pilot said: 'We were low enough for them to distinguish our markings and low enough to see them waving. A couple of men came out on a country road, apparently started this popular movement and, for 30

CITY'S JEWISH CONGREGATIONS START YOM KIPPUR OBSERVANCE

Yom Kippur, holiest day in the entire Jewish calendar, will be celebrated by Mansfield Jewish congregations in the 24-hour period between sunset Friday and sunset the following day.

The Day of Atonement is observed by Orthodox, Conservative and Reformed Jews throughout the world, and the day is devoted to prayer, confession and worship.
Unconnected with any historic event, it is a day for fasting and atonement. It is a day set aside for the individual to look at himself, to repent of his sins and to atone for the wrong he has done
to himself and to others.

Jews throughout the world
feel that in this year of 1940
Yom Kippur has a special meaning for all humanity. The holiday opens on Friday evening with the descent of the sun. A memorial service for the dead and the blowing of shofar, the ram's horn, are a part of the synagogue service. Kol Nidre, a prayer set to music, is a traditional part of Yom Kippur services.

The big-scale bombing attack carried out during the night included hits on Nazi destroyers at the French port of Brest, the ministry said.

In daylight raids on Germany
and Holland yesterday, it added,
"bombs burst clean across the tracks and railroad sidings at Wardendorf, 50 miles east of Munster."

Among the targets bombed were an oil plant and munitions factory
at Cologne; aluminum works at Grevenbroich, the Krupp municipality works at Essen, and an electric power station at Reisholz.

Heavy Damage At Docks Reported

BERLIN — (AP) — The German high command asserted today that the "heaviest damage was inflicted on docks in the Thames bend" in London during an all night raid which followed an incessant day attack.

Even before the high command issued its daily communiqué fresh crows of airmen, favored by the weather, were reported pounding anew at England in daylight raids.

Informal sources declared that several hundred night fliers unloaded more than 200,000 pounds of explosives on London.

Reviewing action of the past 24 hours the high command reported:

Direct hits which destroyed
hangars, barracks and grounded planes at St. Eval, Penrose and St. Merryn, among "several"
airports attacked in central and southern England.

chantmen by submarine and several bomb hits amidships on a

U. S. AWAITING TOKYO REACTION

Washington Begins Period of Watchful Waiting on Far Eastern Problem.

lization and business, is considered much more serious. Unconfirmed
but persistent reports are reaching Washington to the effect that Japan may attempt to take control of the international settlement in Shanghai at any time.
Thousands of Japanese troops are in Shanghai as well as some 1,600 American marines. The presence of these marines in an area dominated by the Japanese military long has been recognized as a source of danger. At the same time the U. S. has decided that it cannot afford to withdraw them and leave American civilians
in China unprotected.

Officials expect that it will require several months at least to carry out the evacuation of Americans from the Far East.
Many U. S. citizens have resided in the Orient for years, and have extensive business and personal interests there which cannot be liquidated overnight.

Pending a survey of Americans in the Far East that is being made by U. S. consular and diplomatic officers, the state department is reserving decision on the question of whether it will be necessary to send ships on special evacuation missions.

Informal quarters expressed the view, however, that some facilities in addition to regular scheduled sailings must be provided.

Meanwhile, short of military measures, the administration is considering increased economic pressure on Japan if it insists on persisting in its violation of the Far Eastern "status quo." President Roosevelt, it was pointed out,
now has authority under national defense legislation to embargo
virtually everything that Japan requires to fight. Most serious blow at Japan's war economy, it is believed, would be a joint Anglo-American embargo on oil. Japan imports virtually 90 per cent of its oil requirements.

The French ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye, discussed the Far Eastern situation last night with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. He declined, however, to comment on their conversation.

Bombs Tossed At Japanese Paper

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Attempted bombing of a pro-Japanese newspaper today increased tension in Shanghai as American residents awaited a reply from Washington
on their request for ships to speed evacuation.

Chinese terrorists, marking the nation's "Fourth of July," tossed two bombs into the building which houses the Central China Daily News, organ of the Nanking puppet regime.

One Chinese suspected of tossing one of the bombs was arrested, but both of the missiles apparently duds—failed to explode.
Steamship companies, meanwhile, were swamped with requests for passenger reservations.
More than 300 applications were received yesterday alone, but steamship companies were unable to grant berths because their boats were booked up to capacity for weeks.

Colonies Face Internecine War

(By United Press)

A struggle was imminent today between French west and equitorial Africa, embracing one-fourth the dark continent, over conflicting loyalties to the warring nations of Europe.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the free France faction allied with Great Britain, landed at Duala, on the Cameroon coast to consolidate his hold on equatorial Africa. All this region of 900,000 square miles and 3,500,000 people,
comprised of the Cameroons,
French and Belgian Congo, the Lake Chad, Oubangi and Chari districts, had declared allegiance to him except for a small part of the Gabon area.

Gen. Maxime Weygand, once generalissimo of the allied French and British armies, arrived in French West Africa to hold that region for the Vichy government which has capitulated
to Germany. French West Africa embraces 1,820,000
square miles and has a population of 15,000,000.

Weygand's forces held the three important west African ports:
Bakar, where a combined free French-British landing force was repulsed two weeks ago; Libreville and Port Gentil. British warships were blockading all three.

An announcement of the French admiralty indicated that hostilities had begun. It said the French submarine Ajax had been sunk,
its crew rescued and taken to Freetown, Sierra Leone. A British colony in west Africa. It was not announced how the Ajax was sunk
but the French admiralty said its information came from the British admiralty.

De Gaulle was believed preparing for an attempt to lure French Africa to the Free French side. His efforts were expected to be directed at Dahomey and the French Ivory coast, where Free France sentiment was reported strong.

In the region under Weygand's command were also Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, Mauritania, Senegal, Guinea, Togo and the Niger territory.

British Ready To Leave Rumania

BUCHAREST — (AP) — British legation officials began destroying secret documents today, apparently indicating a break in diplomatic relations with Rumania was near as German troops filtered into the country.

High ranking German officials
arriving in Bucharest took over choice suites in the leading hotels and rushed from conference to conference making preparations for garrisoning Nazi soldiers soon to be stationed throughout the country.

British authorities said they had no new information concerning the arrival of German troops in Rumania, but one official said he had personally seen Italian army officials at Galatz.

Galatz is on the Danube river,
about 100 miles from the Black sea.

An official announcement said that German-Rumanian economic talks would begin in Berlin Oct.
18.

The German language press
opened a violent anti-British campaign and also said Britain was considering setting up opposition
"Rumanian government" in London.

Sources close to the British legation said departure of all British citizens from Rumania "appears to be only a matter of a few days."

Duce Reviews Fascist Youth

PADUA, Italy — (AP) — Premier
Benito Mussolini reviewed 20,000
Fascist youths and units of his crack army of the Po today without making the speech all Europe
had expected.

In the presence of the diplomatic envoys and military attaches of Germany, Japan, Spain, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, and youth delegations from all these countries but Japan, Mussolini stood in the reviewing stand in the Corso Garibaldi and took the salute from his Fascist youth, led by visiting delegations of youths from the other nations.

To the disappointment of those
here, and to those in other nations who had expected him to make an important pronouncement on the results of his recent talk with Adolf Hitler, Mussolini left the stand without speaking.

confusion regarding the tri-

make a few observations.

"It was not understood that closure of the Burma route for on Japan's ability to conclude a peace with China within that period.

"With regard to the tri-partite pact, it is my earnest wish that such a powerful nation as the United States and that all

Japan because of the China incident or otherwise.

"Such an eventuality, threat-

"The agreement was made for the United States, not against that country. In short,
it is a peace pact."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1940.

The nations all seem to have quit counting how much money they owe.

A national trade survey lists 158 ice cream flavors—but there are still some folks who can't think of any kind except vanilla.

Some Republicans are suggesting Oct. 23 for observance of "No Third Term Day" while others believe it should be postponed until Nov. 5.

Two Strong Parties Essential

THE two-party system, which had long been regarded as essential to a democracy, all but went by the board four years ago when only two states were carried by the Republican presidential candidate.

In all probability it was this extreme "vote of confidence" in 46 states that resulted in some of the previously unexampled assumption of executive authority by President Roosevelt, notably his Supreme Court packing attempt in 1937 and his frequent departures from earlier promises of economy in governmental operations.

The 1936 election result, which left only Vermont and Maine in the Republican column, was quite gleefully accepted by some Democrats as marking the downfall of the opposition party and acceptance of one-party rule in the United States.

Sounder thinking, however, has brought a changed attitude toward the 1936 accomplishment and it is now being more generally recognized that a close balance between the voting strength of the two parties, in national as well as state and local elections, offers greater protection from partisan manipulation and political chicanery than such dependable majorities as have been common to the Solid South and New York's Tammany on the one side and Maine and Vermont on the other.

A one-party system, however noble it may be in its idealism, cannot fail to be fraught with grave dangers when subjected to the sometimes unscrupulous methods of practical politicians and visionary theorists.

A one-party system, with or without intent, quickly trends toward totalitarian policies and finally substitutes dictatorship for democracy. Examples of this are found in many parts of the world where all individual rights have either been relinquished or usurped.

Whatever is the outcome of next month's national election it may well be the hope of thoughtful Americans that the voting will be sufficiently close to assure the permanent maintenance of two vigorous political parties—each to serve as a check on the other, so that America will not degenerate into either a beneficently paternalistic or a ruthlessly dictatorial form of government.

Kenneth Downs Saw It Happen

REALITY of Europe's war was brought closer home to a Mansfield audience yesterday when Kenneth T. Downs, International News Service war correspondent, told of personal experiences in France during the German invasion and gave first-hand information about the events leading up to the surrender of Paris and the tragic end of French resistance to the Axis powers.

Listeners were also given a clearer idea of responsibilities and dangers of war correspondents in performing their tasks of gathering news under such conditions and transmitting it to the agencies through which it is re-distributed to newspapers all over the world.

While these correspondents are inclined to minimize their own part in such history-making occurrences as were described by Mr. Downs, the hazards involved were obvious to all who heard his talk and there was realization that only by rare good fortune could injury or death be escaped.

As a concluding feature in observing National Newspaper Week, the News-Journal arranged for the appearance of Mr. Downs in Mansfield for a talk at a luncheon meeting of five civic clubs, with an audience limited to the capacity of the Mansfield-Leland hotel ball room. The only regret is that the talk could not have been heard by an audience of several thousand.

Based on his own observations and study of conditions in Europe, a final statement by Mr. Downs merits serious thought by every American. "We cannot afford," he said, "to waste one single day in bringing our preparedness to a peak. No sacrifice is too great to keep our institutions of free speech, free assemblage and free press from being blacked-out, as they have been in the conquered territories of Europe."

Take Time To Play

YOU MIGHT think this advice rather frivolous if it were not given by a distinguished educator. President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar college says it is very important to continue playing "as we descend into the darkness of an international conflict and civilization seems to enter upon an eclipse."

He is certainly whole-hearted about it. "Let us play," he says, "in camp when the soldiers come in from maneuvers. Let the children play who are left at home. Let juvenile delinquency not increase as it did in the World war, because play was neglected."

We mustn't to school and make a job of it. "We should play for the sake of playing, not in order to keep our health, no matter how important health may be. Play is a privilege and a recreation, and we should play for fun."

By all means, he adds, eliminate "spurious play, business under another name," such as the deadly seriousness of the bridge table, that other gambling at the races, the prize fight, the football, basketball, the Olympic mimic war.

Opinions will differ on what is and isn't "play," but the general idea seems quite clear—that there must be some interruptions to the serious thing.

Hemispheric Unity Needed

TWENTY nations, colors from nine Latin American countries were told by President Roosevelt the other day that defense of the Americas is now "a common problem," and the time has come for the "solidarity of this hemisphere to be 'each for all and all for each.'"

In other words, the Latin nations of this hemisphere are regarded as grown-ups and they have a natural right and duty to share in the protection of this New World from outside interference and peril.

The United States, as the largest, richest and strongest of these nations, naturally expects to assume more responsibility that the others for defense, in man-power and money, but asks that each of the others do its part.

PUTTING UP A BOLD FRONT

Listen World!

Nobody 'Grows Up'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I USED to count on Growing Up, looked forward to it with an eager wonder and delight.

Some day, I told myself, when I'm Grown Up, I'll be all over these mixed-up feelings that make life so hard for kids. Who was it, I wondered, who'd first said that Being Young was the happiest time in your life? It wasn't . . . it wasn't!

It was a dreadful, dizzy, hurty time! You never knew what to do and you always did it wrong, and everyone blamed you. But when I Grew Up . . .

you'd all be different! I knew I'd had some Perfectly Wonderful Grown Ups and they were that way, so sure of themselves, so untroubled. I'd be like them. I'd never again be afraid or unsure. Everything would be sharp and clear; then, not fuzzy and wobbly the way it was now. I'd know what I wanted and I'd do it, without this funny feeling in the pit of my stomach.

And some day, when I'd grown up, I'd understand people. They wouldn't be able to kid me any more . . . or frighten me . . . or make me feel small and cheap. I'd look at them through my Cold Blue Eyes and know exactly what they were up to.

I'd never again make a fool of myself, when I was Grown Up. I wouldn't fly into tantrums—or start crying—or get all trembling inside. I'd always be Dignified and Graceful—and, maybe, a little Remote. There'd be something Mysterious about me . . . something that would make people realize that I couldn't be monkeyed with.

Yes, it was going to be wonderful, when I'd Grown Up. For something happened to you when you Grew Up. Happened almost overnight. You didn't expect it—or quite understand it—but it happened just the same. All of a sudden you changed. You were entirely different. You weren't all tangled up any more. You were certain. And everything came easy. You knew what to

Health And Diet

Growing Child And Calories.

—By DR. CLENDENING

CHILDREN need about the same proportion of ingredients in the diet as adults, except in respect to proteins. Protein is needed in growth and also stimulates the general processes of nutrition.

Normally in the adult diet the carbohydrates (sweets and starches) should make up about half the amount of food by weight; fat and protein about a quarter. It is easy to raise a child's protein proportionately by adding meat or eggs or milk. Vitamins and minerals are not needed in different quantity or proportion than in the adult menu.

The total amount of food needed by the child is absolutely and proportionately to weight greater than for an adult. An adult of 150 pounds at moderate activity can get along on 3,000 to 4,000 calories at the most.

Gephart, after very extensive studies of the pupils at St. Paul's school of the pupils at St. Paul's school for boys, found they required from 5,000 to 6,000 calories a day. This, of course, presupposes some athletic activity.

Sample Menus.

Palmer, who has made a number of studies in the important field of childhood nutrition, gives the following as a sample menu for a child of 12 years:

Breakfast: Cooked apricots (4 tbs.); bacon (2 slices); cornmeal cereal (3 tbs.); milk (1 glass); cream (4 tbs.); sugar (2 tbs.); toast (2 slices); butter (2 pats).

Lunch: Cream of vegetable soup (1 cup); egg salad, mayonnaise (1 tbs.); buttered noodles (3 tbs.); sliced peaches, sugar (2 tbs.); bread (2 slices); butter (2 pats); milk (1 glass).

Dinner: Roast beef (1 slice); browned potatoes (1 medium); jelly (1 tablespoon) buttered carrots (3 tbs.); bread (1 slice); butter (1 pat); one cookie; baked custard; milk (1 glass).

NOBODY EVER IS!

Nobody ever really grows up. Nobody is ever really free from fear or awkwardness or loneliness. We never learn "what to do with our hands," though we live to be a hundred years. We never stop making childish blunders and stupid mistakes. We may learn a few superficial easy gestures but to the end of the term we're frightened, foolish children . . . dreaming wonderful dreamings . . . breaking our hearts on the wreckage of remorse.

Yet maybe there's someone somewhere who understands and loves a child, even though it blunders.

And who'll forgive us—and give us another start—because we dared to dream?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jesse Jones Defends New Dealism, Gets Applause of Business Hosts

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Big business members of the commerce department's Business Advisory Board got the surprise of their lives at the banquet they gave to new Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones.

The towering, multi-millionaire Texan has not been noted for his New Dealism. As RFC boss, sometimes he bluntly opposed the White House, and his elevation to the cabinet met with dour mutters in certain inner administration quarters.

So when Jones rose to address his business hosts, they leaned back in comfortable anticipation of soothing remarks. A few minutes later they were sitting bolt upright in startled astonishment.

"These United States," said the new secretary of commerce, "have been good to us. We have made money, we have nice homes, wear good clothes, have fine cars and can afford banquets like this one. We can look back fifty years, when most of us started, and chart the courses we followed. But we can't look ahead that far and see where we are going."

"But there are some things we do know about the future. One of them is that the days of making great fortunes are over. That is finished. Another is that the upper third, you and I, has got to have a more public-minded viewpoint. We must realize that the welfare and well-being of the lower third is our problem. We are not living in a world by ourselves. We are as much a part of society as the fellow on the other side of the tracks."

"His problems are our problems and unless something is done about them, the world we know and want to preserve won't last very long. We business men can't afford to be blind, or obstructive, or stupid. You can't turn the clock back. Remember that."

Equally unexpected was the reaction to the Jones talk. His business hosts applauded vigorously.

Note—Lone guest not in dinner clothes was Averell Harriman, director of numerous corporations and railroads and former head of the Advisory Board. Harriman's old friend Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman joshingly started a subscription fund to buy him a dinner jacket.

Army Uniforms.

YOUNG MEN who want to be officers in the new army are finding that the greatest obstacle is the cost of getting dressed. The army does not provide uniforms for its officers, and the cost at a tailor shop is enough to send them back home as conscientious objectors.

For an officer called in from Reserve, here is the list of minimum requirements. It does not include "special evening dress," which would add another $105 to the total.

Olive drab blouse (coat) with "pink" slacks . . . $60.00
Overcoat . . . 58.00
Garrison cap . . . 8.50
Campaign cap . . . 3.00
San Browne belt . . . 10.50
Puttees . . . 10.50
Field boots . . . 18.50
Six shirts at $3.00 . . . 18.00
Breeches . . . 25.00

Total . . . $212.00

This also does not include a $16 saber, which has now been made optional. And it includes only one suit of blouse-and-slacks, whereas three or four actually are required.

The quartermaster corps of the army estimates that $250 would be required to purchase a "modest outfit" for a young officer.

Capital Chaff.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER, serving on the National Defense Commission, has been described as a "dollar-a-year-man." "But," complained the young millionaire, "I don't even get the dollar." He is in a classification which gets no pay at all. . . . Using the remnant of the Stokowski-selected orchestra for the South American tour, National Youth Administration is staging Sunday radio concerts.

Mrs. Lionel Atwill claims credit for Senator Connally's long hair. "I make him keep it long," she says, "because we must have one man who looks like a real senator."

Willkie and Labor.

FROM the start of his campaign in the Chicago stockyards, Wendell Willkie has plugged tenaciously away at wooing labor. It has been a hard, uphill fight.

But the gritty GOP standard bearer has stuck doggedly to it and has gone out of his way every where to sell himself to the workman. Just how tough a proposition this is, is illustrated by the following incidents:

1. In Lansing, Mich., the Oldsmobile auto management asked the shop committee if it would be all right to close down for an hour, so that Willkie could visit the plant to talk to the workers. The answer of the shop committee was that the union had no objection—provided the company paid the men for the time they listened to the candidate.

The company refused, and the proposed meeting was canceled.

2. Husky, white-haired Charles MacGowan, vice president of the AFL Boilermakers and Shipbuilders Union, is a lifelong Republican and personal friend of Willkie's. Several years ago, at a conference with MacGowan in the New York offices of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp., Willkie instructed an assistant:

"I want you to see to it that hereafter no supplies are bought from any concern that doesn't play ball with the boilermakers' union. These boys are our friends."

MacGowan relates this incident proudly. But when the GOP national committee asked MacGowan for an endorsement of Willkie, MacGowan replied with a polite but firm "no."

"I'm sorry to have to do this," he explained, "for I have a deep affection for Wendell Willkie. He's one of the grandest guys I know and our relations on labor matters always have been good. But I've got to think about my own people first."

I guess I would have been in there pitching for Willkie if he had showed labor he had more to offer than the New Deal. He hasn't done that. He has made a lot of promises about putting people back to work, but he hasn't told how he would do it. Promises aren't enough. So I'm casting my lot with Roosevelt."

Merry-Go-Round.

AFTER watching a senate session from the galleries, Dr. Anthony J. Donohue, Jr., head of Philadelphia General hospital, said, "Most of them seem to be suffering from metabolic disturbances."

Secretary Hull was asked a question about Thailand. When he answered, the word Thailand stuck in his throat, and he said, "I can't get over calling it Siam."

A friend asked Senator Bertha Gooch, secretary to Senator Radcliffe of Maryland, if she was going to go on being a secretary all her life. Her reply was, "I guess so, and when I die, I'll be secretary to Saint Peter, and I won't like it, because I won't know any of his constituents."

A Farmer's Diary

Second Brood of Quail

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST evening at twilight, near the grass turned and twisted. At intervals she spoke, to keep her family near.

How easily, I thought, these wild folk make their homes—and leave them at the first rosy tint of dawn, as quietly as they came. No mattresses, no springs, no pink pajamas—they leave as unencumbered as they arrived. The good earth provides both rest and food. They feast sumptuously on seeds and insects until winter storms begin—and even winter's chill is nature's test of fitness to survive. I have no fear of it.

I heard the mother's call and counted eight prim chicks creep into the shelter with her. Little contented voices prattled low, and the doing mother uttered such short sweet sounds to lull her sleepy brood that only a human slumber could rival it.

STUDY CITY AS STOP ON MAJOR U. S. AIR ROUTE

United Air Lines Official Says Survey Being Made For Small City Stops.

Mansfield is being considered as an intermediate stop on a proposed air route from Toledo to Washington by one of the nation's major air lines.

This was disclosed today by officials of United Air Lines, which now has an application before the Civil Aeronautics administration in Washington seeking approval of a proposed non-stop flight between the two cities.

The proposed route would link Washington with the airline's main transcontinental route at Toledo. The application was filed with the administration early in June but hearing on the petition has not yet been set.

Officials pointed out that there were several "important industrial and business centers" including Mansfield along the proposed route which might be served with passenger and express service.

A spokesman for the airline said United Air Lines was now engaged in a preliminary survey of these points, including the Mansfield port, with the possibility of amending the original petition, to include stops here.

It was pointed out, however, that the survey was still in an early stage and that it might be some time before the CAA would be asked to consider the proposals.

The possibility of air service for the city, of course, hinges largely on condition and length of runways at the municipal airport.

Although the present runways are expected to provide the needed length of landing heavy transports, there is some question about whether the sodded strips would be satisfactory for handling heavy traffic during spring months and during rainy periods.

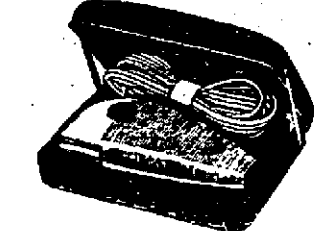

A proposed National Youth administration project, now being revised by the government agency, will assist materially in improving facilities at the port, but hard-surfaced runways, suitable for year around commercial traffic, cannot be obtained until funds are provided for their construction.

Soccer Tourney Being Planned For High Girls

Wilma Snider, Senior high school girls' physical education director, announced today that the Girls' Soccer tournament at the school would end Oct. 21.

A total of 315 girls from the gym classes are participating in 21 different soccer teams, Miss Snider said. Games are played each evening on the athletic field.

Doris Dent is chairman of the tournament and all games are officiated by 20 girls who passed a "referee's" test given by Miss Snider earlier this year.

A sports test, comprised of 95 questions and covering almost every sport, was also given to applicants for the "Leaders" group, now being organized to assist Miss Snider with gym classes and other athletic activities.

Officers of the Red Cross council at Mansfield Senior high school were announced yesterday by Florence Shire, adviser to the council.

Patricia Banroft was chosen president; Marjorie Hale, vice president; Marjorie Sowash, secretary and Pat Mancini, treasurer. Plans for knitting sweaters for war refugees are now being made by the club, Miss Shires said.

Congress Quits Individually as Recess Effort Fails

McNARY BLOCKS BARKLEY PLAN FOR VACATION

Quorum Lacking as Leaders Debate Issue in Senate; Politics Charged.

(By United Press) WASHINGTON—Congress, which has refused to adjourn or recess until after the election, found its attendance dwindling today.

The senate was in recess until tomorrow, Republican Leader Charles L. McNary, G. O. P. candidate for vice president, having blocked a nearly consummated plan for merely formal meetings twice a week.

The house scheduled a meeting for today even though it had virtually nothing to do, but had an agreement to recess then until Monday. This agreement was abandoned after McNary had abandoned all efforts to vote a recess until some definite date in the future.

There was no roll call in the senate yesterday to show how many members were in town. But McNary said he did not believe a quorum could be mustered. When he said that, during a debate with McNary over a recess, there were only 39 senators present. A quorum is 49.

The house found 301 members present on a quorum call, indicating 129 absentees. Present membership is 430. But on a roll call vote on a minor tobacco bill later the number not answering had increased to 156. Some members were present and did not vote.

Barkley said he did not expect more than 20 senators to show up Friday to hear the chaplain's prayer and then adjourn.

McNary's action in blocking three-day recesses of the senate came just as Barkley thought he had a gentleman's agreement worked out with Assistant Republican Leader Warren R. Austin. McNary held that it would leave Barkley with the responsibility of summoning the senate in event of emergency.

"That is too much power for one man to have," McNary said. Barkley, who said Republicans had been urging him for weeks to work out a recess agreement, charged that there were politics in their position.

"If the opposition party has no more important issue than that of three-day recesses, it is in a sad position," he said.

PARTY RALLY

Bricker to Speak at G. O. P. Meeting in Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD—Governor John W. Bricker will speak at the Morrow county fairgrounds, Friday afternoon, Oct. 11 at a free ox roast sponsored by the Morrow county Republican organization. Don B. White, chairman of the Morrow county Republican executive committee, announced today.

White states that while the meeting is sponsored by the Republican organization, all persons regardless of party will be welcomed to the ox roast where free sandwiches and coffee will be served. A number of state Republican candidates in addition to the governor will attend.

Plans are being made, White said, for an expected crowd from three to five thousand. This is the first ox roast ever held in Mt. Gilead on such a large scale. Preparations of the meet are in charge of an Ohio State University professor and students who have specialized in this work.

The ox roast will start promptly at two o'clock, White said.

Mr. Willey is employed at the Pershing Vault company here.

DISCUSSES NYA

GALION—Work of the National Youth Administration was discussed in a talk by Superintendent of Galion Schools O. E. Hill when he was the speaker Tuesday noon at the Galion Kiwanis club meeting.

The NYA furnishes employment to needy high school students, and the allotment is as much as $8 per student per month, Mr. Hill said. The amount distributed is based upon the school enrollment. During 1939, the Galion schools received $872 per month for the program, Mr. Hill stated.

PLAN RECITALS MILLETSBURG—The first in a series of organ recitals planned by the First Presbyterian church in dedication of their new pipe organ, will be presented Sunday, Oct. 13 at four o'clock in the afternoon by Mrs. Grace Mackey, minister of music in the local church.

SMALL BUSINESS AID ADVOCATED

automobile through Connecticut manufacturing communities. Both Willkie and his aides expressed pleasure at the size and enthusiasm of the gatherings, which put him two hours behind schedule.

His schedule includes a major address tonight at Providence and another tomorrow night at Boston.

When the candidate stood on a pine platform in the midst of a surging New Haven throng, he told his hearers that he never felt better. Declaring that the New Deal has been "stepping on the neck of the little businessman," he offered six proposals to aid that group:

1. "Propose that we stop changing the rules under which business operates. Instead of making it as difficult as possible for the little businessman to predict what will be happening next month or next year, let us make it as easy as possible."

2. "It is essential that the little businessman know that his government is for him, not against him. Under a Republican administration there will be no doubt whatever about this."

3. "We must simplify business regulations. In 1938 business had to make out nearly 136,000,000 returns for the federal government." ("No wonder," he added extemporaneously, "businessmen have a time to attend to their business.")

4. "We must revise the tax structure. Never before in history has little business had to carry such a heavy burden of taxes."

5. "Another problem that little business has faced is the problem of raising new capital. The SEC regulations are too complicated x x x."

6. "I propose that the government undertake to build the best possible laboratories in various parts of the country. And I propose that the government put these laboratories at the disposal of little industry and little business at a nominal fee."

Program Set for Bricker Rally

Richland county Republican leaders were completing arrangements today to welcome Gov. John W. Bricker who will speak at the county-wide rally tomorrow night at party headquarters in the Warner building.

Gov. Bricker will speak here about 8:30 p. m. after filling speaking engagements at Mt. Gilead at 4 p. m. and at the Ashland county fairground at 7:30 p. m. Other state candidates are scheduled to speak at the Mansfield rally which will get under way about 8 p. m.

Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said Congressmen J. Harry McGregor, candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, will introduce Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, when he speaks in Mansfield at 9 a. m. next Wednesday.

Speaking last night to one of the largest crowds ever to attend a political rally in Ashland county, Gov. Bricker promised to keep the old age pension law "out of the mire of partisan politics" and to continue economy in state government.

The governor cited figures showing that the financial condition of Ashland county schools had been improved during his term.

CARS COLLIDE

An automobile driven by Catherine Arton, 237 West Sixth street, collided with another vehicle driven by Foster Carroll, 2000 1/2 East street and South Foster last night, police said today.

Officers said Mrs. Arton lost control of her automobile after it hit the other car and it then crashed into the porch of the home of Henry Wapner, 214 East First street. No one was injured, police said.

TWO SPEAKERS

Police Chief Charles R. Bates and Atty. John Catlett will give talks to members of Baker chapter of DeMolay at 7:30 tonight, when the club holds its regular business meeting at Grout hall. Bates, who has just returned from the Federal Bureau of Investigation school, will talk on his experiences there, while Catlett will talk on "Americanism." All Masonic members are invited to attend the session, officers of the order said today.

GUARDSMEN TO HOLD FAREWELL AT LEGION HOME

Mansfield O. N. G. Members to Stage Supper and Dance Saturday Night.

Men and officers of Battery D, 134th Field Artillery, will stage a farewell party Saturday night at the American Legion home. Invited to the affair are wives and sweethearts of the men and the ex-guardsmen who were with the Battery during the recent army maneuvers in Wisconsin.

There will be an informal dance and buffet supper as a "farewell to home." The men of the Battery will mobilize at 7:30 a. m. next Tuesday at the armory and a few days later will start on their motorized movement to Ft. Shelby, Miss., where they will be in federal training for a year.

Adjutant General Gilson D. Light announced today that reorganization and expansion of the 107th cavalry regiment of the Ohio National Guard will be mechanized, with some "rolling arsenals."

Reorganized along with the 107th cavalry will be three medical units to be known as the 151st Medical battalion, and the new 107th will be a composite reconnaissance regiment. It will be used for swift reconnaissance work in country where heavy natural cover would hamper infantry troop movements, Light explained.

Neither the cavalry nor medical units however, has been called for federal service, nor have the tank units, but Light's announcement today indicated that they would be shortly.

General Light said the composite reconnaissance regiment would include old 107th units from Akron, Ravenna, Toledo and Cleveland—all to be mechanized—and cavalry from Cincinnati and Columbus to be retained as horse units.

The adjutant general who relinquishes command of the guard to Major General Robert S. Beighler this week said the new regiment will be greatly expanded from the 780-man strength of the old 107th. This expansion will likely take place at Shelby and the new recruits might not be from Ohio, General Light was unable to say how many new men would be added.

Approximately 700 guardsmen from this section of the state will report to the Mansfield armory next Tuesday and Wednesday for physical examinations.

CANDIDATES TO INVADE STATE

Roosevelt, Willkie and Wallace Schedule Addresses in Next Few Days.

nominee, next week and Henry A. Wallace, vice presidential running mate of Roosevelt.

Roosevelt's avowed purpose in visiting Ohio is to inspect first hand some of the state's vital defense industries and military establishments.

He arrives at Youngstown tomorrow afternoon and the following day makes major stops at Columbus and Dayton. He will deliver a "fireside chat" on national defense from Dayton on Saturday night.

Despite the professed non-political nature of the trip, Republican leaders think otherwise. They saw significance today in the White House announcement that Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for governor, had been invited to accompany the chief executive on his Ohio visit.

It was not known immediately if Davey had accepted. The former governor and Mr. Roosevelt have been at political odds in the past. Republican Governor Bricker, running for re-election against Davey, already has received and accepted an invitation to accompany the President during his tour of Columbus.

Rep. Dow Harter, D., from Akron, said he will join the presidential train at Youngstown and that it will pause for 10 minutes at 6 p. m. in Akron, principally for a change of engines.

Bricker, Davey and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, GOP candidate for U. S. senator, got in campaign licks in northern Ohio speeches yesterday.

Bricker reviewed his claims of economy in state government administration before an audience in Ashtabula. Davey retorted at Kenton that Bricker spent $23,000,000 more in 1939 than Davey's administration did in 1938. Burton asserted at Youngstown it was not fair either to President Roosevelt or to the nation to elect him to a third term because of the great strain the office imposes upon a man.

The schedule of appearances for Burns follows: Columbus, next Monday; Delaware, Tuesday; Kidron in Wayne county, Oct. 17, and Akron, Oct. 18. Other dates are being arranged.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard makes his first campaign appearance in Ohio when he addresses the Kidron ox roast near Wooster on Oct. 19.

Democrats Map Precinct Drive

Democratic party workers will meet at their headquarters in the Richard Trust building tonight to draft plans for an intensified precinct campaign to win over the vote in Richland county.

The campaign committee is expected to complete details for perfecting a county-wide precinct organization, Atty. Marshall Moore, campaign chairman, said.

The session is the only one listed on the Democratic calendar until Tuesday when organization followers will turn out to greet Martin L. Davey, gubernatorial candidate.

Ballyhooed as a campaign starter, the rally will be held at Senior high school. John McSweeney, Wooster, candidate for U. S. senator, and State Auditor Joseph Ferguson, will also speak.

Addressing a rally in Urbana last night, Davey said he ordered pensions increased twice while he

GIVES RULING ON BARGAINING

NLRB Holds A. F. of L. Union To Represent Machinists at Doninion.

Local Union No. 453 of the International Association of Machinists, an A. F. of L. affiliate, was certified today by the National Labor Relations board as the sole collective bargaining agency for machinists, tool and die makers at the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company in Mansfield.

The board's ruling was considered a victory for the A. F. of L. union over the CIO United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers which sought to retain bargaining rights for all employees of the Mansfield plant.

The A. F. of L. union's petition for bargaining rights was heard Sept. 4 at the Richland county courthouse by Max V. Johnstone, an NLRB examiner.

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union contested the petition on the grounds that it already held bargaining rights for employees of the Dominion plant.

Approximately 18 tool makers are employed at the plant which has more than 350 workers.

was governor in 1936 and promised to do it again if his bid for a third term is successful. He also took in Ottawa, asserting that Gov. Bricker, the G. O. P. candidate, failed to vote "one penny of the banal appropriations," stating that "while I was governor I voted $15,000,000 of proposed appropriations."

OHIO NEWSPAPERMAN BOMBED OUT OF BED IN LONDON RAID

(Editor's Note: Robert E. Bunnelle, 37-year-old native of Urbana, O., who tells here of his experiences in a Nazi air raid on London, has been with the Associated Press in the British capital since the summer of 1939.)

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE LONDON—(AP)—Reichsmarshal Goering's Luftwaffe bombed me right out of bed this morning with a hit on one of London's largest apartment buildings.

ELECT OFFICERS

Schoolmasters Elect Haber as New President.

Officers for the coming year were elected by members of the Schoolmasters club following a picnic dinner held at Camp Avery Hand last night, with L. C. Baumgardner, president, in charge.

Dan Haber, John Simpson, was elected president; Dale Edwards, John Simpson, vice president; Ed Kissel, principal of Newman school, treasurer; and Edwin Fensch, John Simpson, secretary.

An amendment was passed at the meeting to make the organization county-wide, rather than a city group.

A committee consisting of G. P. Van Arnum, Paul Hauserman, and H. D. Bishop was appointed to write the amendment, which will be read at the next meeting. The club also voted to endorse the one-mill levy to raise funds to improve the fire department, police facilities, and playgrounds.

around my rooftop flat. One blazed a hole in a row of houses across the alley from my bedroom window.

A second struck the main entrance, smashing the lobby. The third landed at the nearest street corner, setting fire to a shattered gas main. The fire shot skyward like a burning gas well. It is still burning as I send this.

I had just returned home from the office last night after a night's mate mile walk and a two-mile taxi ride through glass-strewn streets with bombs dropping on all sides and shells bursting in the sky.

I met Mrs. Bunnelle in the lounge and we decided to retire as things seemed to be calming down.

The apartment porter joked about my jaunt from the office, during which I was forced to seek shelter three times, and laughed, "All you need to make the night complete is a hit here."

The next time I saw him in the wrecked lobby he was wrapped in bandages.

Daylight came half an hour after the bombs struck out apartment and as soon as the all-clear sounded everyone surged into the street to see the damage. It wasn't a pretty sight.

I walked a couple of blocks before finding a telephone that would work and called the Associated Press office and then returned to the apartment to catch a couple of hours sleep before I was due back at work again.

PREPAREDNESS URGED IN TALK

War Correspondent Tells of Personal Observations of

"But my observation is that the French had perhaps grown a little too comfortable. They hated the idea of war. They were not prepared technically or in their hearts and souls.

"Across the border the Germans had been preparing with cold deliberation for ten years. They were technically ready. They had a generation eager for fighting."

Downs quoted a French staff officer as citing internal political and class hatred as leaving the nation weakened after a winter of inactivity.

"We need a shock to unite us and shake up the high command," Downs quoted the officer as saying.

"But the shock came too late," He continued. "Morale was broken. And German propaganda—this is not your fight—had taken its toll."

At the Meuse front, Downs said he saw the 100 billion dollar Nazi war machine begin its methodical air attacks to be followed by the aerial and artillery barrage and crush of flame throwing tanks that put the French to rout so fast they did not have time to destroy the Meuse bridges.

"At the Meuse," said Downs, "continental resistance was broken."

He pictured sharply the refugee clogged roads which hampered the French, the "lunch hour" bombing of an almost deserted Paris that neatly clipped 20 blocks out of the city, destroying 35 airports and an automobile factory, and the heroic last stand of the poilus along the Somme after General Maxime Weygand took command.

To reach the Somme area, Downs defied general orders and rode secretly from Paris in an ambulance driven by a Frenchman, Robert Montgomery. He assisted Montgomery and other American ambulance drivers in an attempt to evacuate over 3,000 wounded from the flaming city of Beaulieu.

After the capitulation of Paris, Downs followed the government to Tours and eventually to Bordeaux. "Only," he said, "if you can imagine the whole population of Michigan crowding into a small section of Ohio, with their meagre belongings, sleeping in the streets and unable to get any information about what was going on, you can imagine the wretchedness of Bordeaux."

"There was unbelievable panic, possibly fostered by 'Laval and company' and when Marshal Pétain announced that fighting must stop, the French took it with complete apathy."

Downs concluded his story with a narrative of how he and other correspondents were awakened by bombs while trying to catch a bit of sleep on a concrete pier on the Mediterranean coast, and of their escape to England on a Dutch ship frightened out of French waters by an exploding mine.

He paid tribute to General Weygand for his statement in the Paris crisis—"If we are not capable of rebuilding Paris, we are not capable of rebuilding France."

He said he was heartened tremendously on his arrival in England to see the universal courage of the English. He praised their perseverance which has continued through over five months of "terror bombings."

Downs declared the British had learned a valuable lesson from the defeat of the French and that they "had smelled that defeat" far in advance of anyone else.

"It was for this reason," he explained, "they did not send the R. A. F. to Europe earlier. They used their metropolitan air force only to accomplish the 'miracle of Dunkirk' after King Leopold of Belgium had surrendered and left the British and French armies in a trap."

In summarizing his experience, Downs concluded:

"There is no sacrifice too great for us in America to make to keep our institutions of free speech, free assembly, free press and personal liberty from being blacked-out as they have been in the conquered territories of Europe."

He was introduced by R. D. Lindsay, managing editor of The News-Journal.

TRANS-PANAMA HIGHWAY BUILT

Road Between Panama City and Colon Completed Within 9 Months.

PANAMA CITY, P. R.—(INS)—The much-discussed trans-Isthmian highway connecting Panama City and Colon, respectively Pacific and Atlantic terminus cities, will become a reality within nine months, according to information released by Panamanian officials.

The highway will be of two-fold importance in that it will serve as an economic boom to the Republic of Panama and will also be of inestimable importance as a military highway for the United States armed forces of the Canal Zone.

At the present time there is a concrete highway from this point to Madden Dam which is approximately half way across the Isthmus. A connecting strip of approximately 25 miles is all that needs to be completed.

"The total cost of the road," Panama officials disclosed today, "including the concreting, will be for the account of the United States government, without any concession having to be made or any contribution, financial or otherwise, given by the government of Panama. All of the engineers, office workers, laborers, etc., employed on the project will be required to have recommendations from the Panamanian government."

HIS BACK ACHED SO HE COULD HARDLY GET AROUND

"My main reason for starting on REEBEE'S was Prostate Trouble," stated Mr. Jacob Cummings, of 3007 Oak St., Springfield, Ohio. "The pains would center in my limbs and back, my muscles and joints were so stiff and sore it was all I could do to straighten up and walk. My kidneys had become clogged with excess acids, and other wastes which irritated the Prostate Gland, checking my urination until passage was almost impossible. Lack of rest made me very nervous, also one of my worst troubles was dizzy attacks and these were so bad I would feel light headed and everything seemed to spin around.

"Of all the medicines I tried, REEBEE'S was the only one that helped and now I feel better than I have in years. All these troubles are gone and I am recommending REEBEE'S to all who are suffering with the sincere hope that you will be led to give Beebe's a trial as I did.

Can't Go Wrong on Vendol Says Well Known Local Lady

If Your Troubles Come from Constipation or Need of a Mild Kidney Diuretic Action Don't Delay Trying Famous Medicine.

MRS. IDA MYERS

"I don't know exactly how far back it was that I began to notice my kidneys were acting slowly and that constipation was a daily annoyance and made my stomach feel upset and quivery, but a few weeks ago I started taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets and they gave marvelous relief," says Mrs. Ida Myers of 136 West First street, Mansfield.

"Vendol worked easily and pleasantly to relieve my constipation and my kidneys acted more freely and along with this relief came relief from gas, sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion, acid risings and that quivery feeling in my stomach.

"I also noticed with relief from constipation that the dizzy spells, bad taste in my mouth and headaches ceased to bother me.

There is only one Vendol, and it comes in 3 sizes for your convenience. Larger bottles are the most economical. Sold at leading druggists, recommended especially by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth Streets.

JOINS Y. M. C. A. CELEBRATION

Mansfield Members To Honor Founder Tomorrow; Local Activities Reported.

Mansfield's Y. M. C. A. and those throughout the nation will celebrate the 19th birthday anniversary of their founder, Sir George Williams, tomorrow, Ralph Chapman, general secretary of the Mansfield "Y," said today.

"The Y. M. C. A. was organized in London in 1844 by George Williams for young men," Chapman said, "and it is still a young men's association with 62.3 per cent of its membership under 25 years of age and 76 per cent under 30."

During the past year, the local association had 80 organized groups for Christian thought, with 700 enrollments in hobby, discussion, forum, craft, and other classes.

Locally, the Y. M. C. A. conducted 200 personal interviews, aided several in becoming church members, and placed 25 in regular and odd jobs.

"The program of the modern Y. M. C. A.," according to Chapman, "has developed far beyond the dreams of George Williams when he founded the organization."

MANSFIELDERS TO GIVE TALKS

Four From City To Attend Convention of Librarians and Trustees.

When Ohio librarians and trustees hold their 45th annual convention in Youngstown Oct. 10-12 inclusive, one of the important subjects will be the library's part in the national defense program, according to Miss Lois MacKellar, Mansfield librarian.

Librarians have already reported an increasing demand for books on democracy and practical manuals on occupation related to war industries. Material on aviation, machine tools, shop work, sheet metal work, auto mechanics and welding have been in special demand. People are also asking questions on such subjects as conscription, defense appropriations and army regulations, Miss MacKellar said.

Increasing requests for material on all of these subjects presents a serious problem for libraries, and this problem will be discussed at the Youngstown conference.

More than 300 persons are expected to attend the meeting. Among the speakers will be Jesse Stuart, author of "Trees of Heaven," one of the important publications of the year.

Miss MacKellar will be chairman of a Small Libraries round table on Saturday morning, the subject being "A Scrutiny of the Library Needs of a Small Community." Another Mansfielder on the program will be E. J. Wesson, local historian, who will talk on "Local Histories." Other library staff members who will attend are Edith Jones, cataloguer and Myra Lorimer, children's librarian.

150 JOIN P.T.A.

H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior high school, announced today that 150 parents had joined the John Simpson Parent-Teachers association since the membership drive opened two weeks ago.

The drive will come to a close next Wednesday, when a reception for new members will be held at the school. Refreshments will be served at the meeting, Dotson said.

Applicants for the U. S. Marine Corps must be between 66 and 74 inches in height.

Confederate Vets In Reunion

Despite thinning ranks, the United Confederate Veterans again holds their annual reunion in Washington. Most of the Boys of the Gray are over 90 years old. Here Private Frank Powell, left, 102 years old, greets General Julius F. Howell of Bristol, Pa., commander-in-chief of the Confederates. Powell said he helped carry the wounded General Stonewall Jackson during the Civil war.

URNS TABLES ON MOTORIST

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(UP)—An irked pedestrian found a way to get even with motorists who halt in walking lanes when stopping for traffic signals.

A car had stopped for a red light—but not until it had crossed the yellow line into the pedestrian lane. Two persons walked around the car scowling at the driver. A third person opened a rear door of the car, crawled through the automobile and out the rear door.

The light turned green and while other automobile drivers blew their horns, the offending driver was forced to get out and close both doors before proceeding.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headache days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

ELECT MONDAY

Grattan Johnston Weds Rose Quinn At Lima Rectory

Mr. and Mrs. Grattan Johnston are now at home at their new residence, 665 Scholl road, following their marriage at Lima last Saturday at 9 a. m. Members of the immediate families witnessed the quiet ceremony which was performed in the rectory of St. Rose's Catholic church by Rt. Rev. Msgr. James Elder.

The bride is the former Miss Rose Quinn, daughter of Andrew Quinn, sr., of Lima. She received her education at St. Rose high school and Mt. St. Joseph college at Cincinnati. Prior to her marriage she was employed as home economist of the Ohio Power company.

For her wedding she chose an everglade green ensemble with russet brown accessories, and a shoulder corsage of brown orchids. Miss Nora Quinn, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She was attired in a maize wool dress with green accessories, and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Johnston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnston, Findlay, and attended the Findlay high school. He is the manager of Warner Brothers Madison theater, here.

Don Reilly, Lima, served as best man.

Atty. Moore Has Program; Talks On Democracy

A 1 o'clock guest luncheon at Westbrook Country club was the event of the Conversational club for which Mrs. F. E. Rudd entertained. The long table at which the members and 12 guests were seated was decorated with three arrangements of chrysanthemums and roses and autumn leaves.

After the announcement of the dental clinic book review-movie tickets was made, Atty. Marshall Moore was introduced and spoke on the topic "Women's Place in Democracy." He touched on the subject of individual rights, and the necessity of cultivating a real appreciation of freedom and liberty, and the right to vote.

In his talk Atty. Moore pointed out that women should study candidates for propaganda, testimonials, card stacking and glittering generalities, and thereby assist in educating the public to better ways of living, and securing better politicians. In conclusion he pointed out that women can exercise more power and influence in party legislation.

The next meeting will be a program on new books with Miss Katharine Hartman as speaker at the home of Miss Elizabeth Smurr, Oct. 23.

The guests were Mrs. W. J. Tappan, Mrs. Karl T. Langacher, Mrs. R. O. Richards, Mrs. Jacob Roelof, Mrs. C. H. Bell, Mrs. R. M. Beatty, Mrs. Frank Forshee, Mrs. J. M. Clark, Mrs. V. D. Lersch, Mrs. G. A. DeMoss, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine and Mrs. I. L. Bronson.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Olga will be ready at the time you named," I told Philip Veritren sedately. "And she will be very glad to see you. But the interview will have to be in this room. Olina is asleep after suffering with a raging headache, and her mother doesn't wish to risk awakening her."

"Ah! the poor child!" he commented. "But in a way it is fortunate. I wish to see Olga alone, and what I may have to tell her will not be very palatable hearing for her daughter's ears."

To my surprise, although I guessed Lillian expected such a manifestation, his face suddenly crimsoned with embarrassment.

"This is a long story," he said, "part of which you know, another part of which you have guessed, and of a third of which you are wholly ignorant. But it is my sad fate now to make you acquainted with the whole miserable tale."

He stopped, and I again realized the sensation of "holding one's breath." Then he spoke again, slowly, and we focused all our attention upon him.

"There is no hereditary madness in my family," he said heavily, adding bitterly, a second later, "my bar sinister family."

With a smothered little exclamation, Lillian sprang up, moved her chair quickly close to his, and taking one of the tightly pressed hands in her own, held it comfortingly, maternally. He looked at her gratefully, and I saw the pressure of the other fingers relax a bit.

He was like a small boy, needing a mother's comfort, I told myself, feeling sympathy for him steal into my heart, although against the protest of my brain.

"But," he went on, "an eminent neurologist once told me that the terrible will power, the arrogance, the fierce fits of anger were my heritage from the royal family of my unacknowledged father. He killed himself, took my mother with him, and forfeited a throne rather than be parted from my mother. This could have the cumulative effect of madness upon me."

He stopped, and a shudder went over his whole frame. Then he went on, while Lillian clung tightly to his hand.

"There came a time in my life when they did have that cumulative effect," he said. "I shall tell you about that time a little later. But first I wish to tell you two other things. The first is to assure you, my dear," he turned his eyes upon me, "that you need have no fear of Noel's inheriting those traits which so nearly have

KEEP AN ENTRY KILLER

KNOCKING a vital entry out of a dummy which holds an almost set-up suit is sometimes the only way to stop a No Trump game. The same principle applies sometimes to holding a commanding card over what otherwise would be an entry.

West's logical lead against the bidding was a diamond, so he offered the 2. Declarer selected the 10 from dummy and East played the K, the A winning. Clubs were then led. East coming in on the second trick with his A, but the beans were spilled. No matter what he now did, nothing could prevent the declarer from running the dummy's clubs, using the diamond Q as an entry for them. He therefore took four tricks in clubs, two in diamonds and three in spades to get the nine he needed.

East's very first play was the costly one. Seeing that club suit in dummy, he should never have built up the diamond Q as an entry for it. When the 10 was played from dummy, his job was to play low and hold on to his K, never using it except when the Q was first played by the declarer. If that had been done, there would have been no way for the declarer to take more than eight tricks—three in spades, two in hearts, two in diamonds, and one in clubs.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Oct. 11.

A sudden and surprising event bursting into a rather routine or humdrum state of affairs may have rather startling and far reaching results of a wholly unpredictable nature, according to lunar transits. This may precipitate an abrupt change of plans with a radical uprooting of current circumstances. New associations and environs not entirely welcome or pleasant may be looked for but these should not be decided upon with impetuosity or tumult.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of a sharp and surprising turn of events, which may have a radical and uprooting effect on prevailing plans and projects. Change of environs, contacts and objectives may be enforced although not welcomed, but enter into such rearrangements with alacrity.

A child born on this day may have a restless, nervous and at times erratic nature, with sudden impulses and "escapes" difficult to fathom. It would profit by being taught to cultivate response and poise in all sudden visitations.

Devil's Island Convicts Escape to Fight Germans

OFFICERS LEAD PENAL REVOLT AGAINST VICHY

Captain 'Commands' Group of 200 on Perilous Journey to British Territory.

(By International News Service)
ST. THOMAS, VIRGIN IS-LANDS. The famous French penal colony of Cayenne—famously known as "Devil's Island"—
has staged a virtual rebellion against the Vichy government of Premier Marshal Henri Philippe
Petain and its convicts are escaping in an effort to join up with Britain, it was learned today.

This information was brought to St. Thomas by three escaped convicts who arrived here
last night in a 25-foot canoe appropriately christened "General De Gaulle" in honor of the leader of the so-called "Free French" forces opposing the Vichy regime.

The uprising it was disclosed,
is not confined to the convicts themselves, who from time immemorial have attempted to make their way from the almost inaccessible group of islands off the coast of French Guiana despite the terrific risks involved.

The men who arrived here disclosed that one of the colony's military commandants, named Captain Chaudont, rounded up a group of 200 convicts and personally led them on a perilous journey to Georgetown, British Guiana.

Captain Chaudont, an infantry officer, immediately reported to British authorities at Georgetown and sought permission to lead them to Canada in the hope all would be permitted to enlist in the Canadian army and then sail across the ocean to fight Nazi Germany.

Recent reports received here
indicate that other officers in addition to Chaudont are of similar mind and are endeavoring at least to facilitate escape of convicts who wish to bear arms against the Reich. The Vichy government, it is understood, has cut off the subsidy by which Cayenne formerly was supported,
rendering the task of feeding and maintaining the prisoners a difficult one.

Captain Elliott Roosevelt Lives In Dayton Hotel

DAYTON—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt began his career as an army
air corps captain today determined to avoid "political fights"
over his commission.

Roosevelt, second son of the president, is assigned to the procurement branch of the materiel division at Wright field.

He arrived at the field yesterday and was halted at the gate by a sentry who forced him to prove his identity. Roosevelt was admitted after producing a telegram from Col. Oliver F.
Echols, assistant chief of the materiel division.

Roosevelt has had no previous military experience. He is 30 years old.

The captain and his wife drove here from Fort Worth, Tex. They will live in a downtown hotel because all officers' quarters at the field are occupied.

Tragedy Hits Family of Fort Benning Army Sergeant.

COLUMBIA, Ga.—(AP)—Four

tween an army truck loaded with the Fort Benning highway near here last night.

Lack, wife of a Fort Benning army sergeant, Edna May Lack, 13, her daughter; Leroy Lack, 2, her son,

The accident occurred as the picnickers were returning to the

Richland Tax Payments Reach 97 Per Cent

DAILY SCRAPBOOK—

By R. J. Scott

Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments, is a fellow who looks out for the convenience of customers of those city services.
He's had a mail slot installed in his office at City Hall for persons who can't get to the building during office hours. All they have to do now is clip off the stub on an envelope provided at the window and drop it in the box.

Bad luck struck the Mansfield Community Fund office with a vengeance this week. Sidney L.
Palmer, executive secretary,
who has been in ill health for several weeks, was taken to General Hospital for a minor operation, and Mrs. Bessie Hynson, office secretary, took her
foster daughter and niece,
Natalie Beal, to the hospital
last night for an appendicitis operation. The latter was operated on last night and Palmer today.

Along with his other worrying
in arranging for army service registration next Wednesday and a big election in less than a month,
Clerk A. F. Porter of the county election board was trying to solve a little mystery of his own today. Porter received a copy of his picture which appeared in The News-Journal the other day in the mail, and over it was written a note which he can't decipher.
Now he's being kidded by his office associates, and Walter Underwood, deputy clerk of the board, suggested that he turn the anonymous note over to the FBI
for investigation.

At least one Mansfield man is proud of his age today. He is John F. Lorentz, 109 Luther place, who yesterday celebrated his 85th birthday by going to work as usual at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company,
where he is a stock clerk. Fellow employees, who have long admired Lorentz for his ability to get his work out despite his advanced years, got together and gave Lorentz a number of birthday gifts. Lorentz has two sons and a grandson working at the same plant.

CONTINUE WORK FOR LABORADOR

Grenfell Association Carries on Aid to Eskimos and Indians in North.

(By Associated Press)
CHARLOTTE, Vt.—Despite the death of Sir Wilfred Grenfell,
the Grenfell association planned today
to continue his famed work of giving spiritual comfort and medical care to the fisher folk, Indians and Eskimos of Labrador.

Even before he died here yesterday at the age of 75 years, the association had stated that "so long as hard-working people need
the services it can give, the Grenfell association hopes to carry on the work its founder started for those human beings who are our blood brothers."

While funeral plans were incomplete, family sources said
his body probably would be cremated and the ashes taken to Labrador to be interred near St.
Anthony's hospital near those of Lady Grenfell, who died two years ago.

Sir Wilfred completed a game of croquet on the lawn of his summer home on the shore of Lake Champlain a short time before his death. He had been under treatment for the heart ailment for several years.

Born in England, he was knighted by King George V in 1927 in recognition of his missionary work.

Sir Wilfred is survived by two sons, Wilfred, jr., an instructor at St. Mark's school, Southboro,
Mass., and Pascoe, of Schenectady,
N. Y., and a daughter, Rosamond, of Schenectady.

SILENCE NAZIS IN ARGENTINA

Foreign Organizations Not Permitted To Meet.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina.—
(AP)—Meetings of "anti-Argentine" groups were ordered suppressed today. A government spokesman said the order was directed against Nazi and Fascist groups.

The ban was announced by Minister of Interior Miguel Culaciati.
It applied to the three provinces
in which the federal government has to intervene, to all national territories and the federal (Buenos Aires) district. These include the richest and most strategic areas of Argentina and embrace three-fourths of the population.

sading books and articles died yesterday at the home of her lifelong friend and collaborator, Miss Moyra M. Newell, after an illness of eight months.

'SOLDIER'S HEART' TREATED SUCCESSFULLY BY ARMY MEDICS

By HAROLD C. MCKINLEY
CLEVELAND—(AP)—Soldier's heart—a disease producing a condition akin to stage fright—has been treated successfully by
"short-circuiting" the system controlling human energy, the association of U. S. military surgeons was told today as it opened a three-day convention.

The treatment was described in a paper prepared by Brig.
Gen. George Crile, noted surgeon who helped found the Cleveland clinic, and Dr. E. P. McCullagh, clinic colleague.

Soldier's heart, so called because of its prevalence in the military forces during the World war,

COLLECTION IN PAST YEAR HITS HIGHEST PEAK

Treasurer Says $1,307,666
Paid; Figure $73,555 More Than Last Year.

Richland county property owners paid 97 per cent of their real estate tax bill this year to give the county one of the best collections
in its history, Treasurer John E.
Kolb reported today.

In addition to the high percentage of collection of this year's taxes, the county delinquent tax bill was reduced $52,905, leaving $199,631 outstanding in delinques-cies, the lowest figure in more than 10 years.

Real estate and special property assessments paid so far this year total $1,307,666, an increase of $73,555 over last year's payments, the treasurer said.

Figuring the current and delinquent payments against this year's tax charge, collections
amounted to 104 per cent of the charge. The treasurer explained, however, that that figure merely indicates the increased payment of back taxes.

Deputy Treasurer Charles Payne,
who helped compile the report, said
the reduction in delinquencies was "accomplished largely through the direct or indirect liquidation of frozen assets by foreclosure."

He added that the Whittemore plan, providing for the payment of old taxes in installments, also helped in the collection of the old tax bill.

Show Steady Drop.

Delinquencies reached a peak of $543,562 in 1933, the report showed,
but the delinquencies have dropped steadily since then.

Contributing to the gain in collections was the increased valuation of a number of county properties which boosted the taxes on the properties.

Collection of real estate taxes
for the year has been completed
in the county, but the last half personal tax collection will not begin until late in October.

The county has 48 taxing districts, including school districts which extended into adjoining counties. The average tax rate is $13.42 per thousand dollars.

HURT IN CRASH

Four Injured When Auto Hits
Rear of Truck on Route 30.

Four persons were in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, today, of injuries sustained in a traffic accident two miles east of Jeromes-ville on Route 30 early this morning.

Most seriously injured was Eula Watrons, 19, of Akron, treated for a deep gash on the right leg, possible fracture of the right elbow, and numerous cuts and bruises.

Also injured were Clara Watrons, 3, with possible fracture of the shoulder; Delmer Hall, 19,
cuts and bruises; and Merle Watrons, minor scratches, all of Akron.

According to the Ashland county
sheriff's office, Merle Watrons, driver of the vehicle in which the four were riding, crashed into the back of a truck driven by Joseph R. Shultz, 26, of Pittsburgh, who was uninjured.

Officers who investigated the accident said Watrons hit the rear end of the truck when he tried to cut back into his lane
after attempting to pass Shultz's vehicle.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

What Broadway Needs.

Is a good operetta, in the old Dennis King tradition. . . .
New words to take the place of "maestro," "glamor" and "chiseler." . . . Four fresh girls for James McKinley Bryant, who is running out of babes. . . . A tax on silver fox coats at Lindy's. . . . More eagle-eyed, hard-fisted law enforcers like Johnny Broderick. . . .

A gag writer for the Times
sign, to keep the crowds smiling
. . . . A good new song written about it. There hasn't one since "Lullaby of Broadway," which was chanted best by Gertrude Neisen. . . . A super highway direct to Hollywood and 20th Century Fox, for coast commuters and local "discoveries."

Fewer cabs at 8:30. More cabs at 11:05. . . . Gertrude Lawrence. . . . Telephones in front of the Palace, so vaude-villians can call their agents. . . .
A stand-in for Broadway Rose,
who doesn't get around as much as she used to. . . .

A newsreel theater that doesn't show one celluloid foot of war pictures. . . . Fewer imitators of the Hartmans. . . . A stage on every street corner for the pitchmen, some of whom are as funny
as Clyde Hager. . . .

A new Paramount clock—one that tells the current time. . . .
More noses like Milton Berle's. . . .
More horror pictures like those at the Rialto—the kind you giggle
at. . . . Dozens of good gags that can be credited to Oscar Levant,
in case he runs out of them and Broadway is left wit-less. . . .

A children's theater in winter,
presenting plays like "Hansel
and Gretel," "The Blue Bird," "Peter Pan" and "Jack and the Bean-stalk." . . .

Seats along the sidewalks at 56th street so the crowds can watch the electric signs without getting tired tootsies. . . . More Disney shorts, and more closeups of Pluto, the Dream Dog. . . .
The death penalty for song writers who think "muddle"
rhymes with "trouble." . . .

A "rumpus room" in night clubs,
where the belligerent stars of cave society can slug it out without disturbing the non-combatant patrons. . . . More policemen who smile. . . .

Exile for sidewalk toy sellers,
pinapple drink stands and auctions. . . . An American Noel Coward. . . . A Trans-Lux reserved for fans who simply have to boo, hiss, clap and yell at election candidates, facsimiles of dictators, and portraits of lawmakers—just so
the people who merely want to see the films can trade elsewhere.

A special penalty for citizens who toss naked gum on the sidewalks. . . . A milk cut for every chorus girl. . . . Fewer bicycle acts at the Music hall. . . .
An acetylene torch for Al Jolson—it's the only kind he hasn't carried. . . .

A 1940 version of Dorothy Parker. . . . Old fashioned in the Stork club that are made like the old-fashioned in "21." . . .
Stocks—the New England, not the old Wall Street kind—for Fifth Columnists. And right in Times Square. . . . A bigger dance floor in El Morocco. . . .

More comedians like Fred Allen, who really whisks a feather over the ribs. . . . A good broom to sweep the sidewalk cowboys away from that restaurant next to the Rivolt. . . .
Plays from such Hollywood
renegades as Preston Sturges, Morrie Ryskind, and the Spe-wacks. . . .

Less hawking by strip tease
palace doormen. . . . Cab drivers with change of a dollar. . . .
More limps like Larry Hart. . . .
Higher ceilings in the midnight spots.
But boys like Ray Milland at the Automat (I see them in the Au-tomat, but never at the Auto-mat). . . .

Chatter Corner

(Just jottings about people
you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

Marguerite Beck coming out of a drug store with four chocolate sundae in her hands. With only three workers in Dr. Schmucker's office, who was the fourth sundae
for? . . . Mrs. L. B. Hamilton
among those on the mezzanine of the Mansfield-Leland hotel yesterday trying to hear the Kenneth T.
Downs talk before Mansfield service clubs. . . .

Dr. R. C. Wise on his way to his office early in the morning.
. . . Ted Lockwood giving a lesson in bridge at the Y. W. C. A.
Helen (Mrs. Clarence) Stahldresher hurrying along Main street. . . .

Gratton Johnson back from his wedding trip and passing around cigars. . . . Mrs. Marie Ellen Schuff back on the job in the county AAA office after an appendicitis operation. . . . Clerk of Courts Fred R. Zolner, who likes to talk about horses, admiring pictures of them in a magazine.

Birthday greetings to Herbert recall that this is the date. . . .

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK (AP)—Well, ladies and gents, now that baseball is over, we can get down to the serious business of football. Who was it said Notre Dame would murder Georgia Tech Saturday? ... We don't believe it—we think those Engineers from the deep south will give the Irish one of their toughest battles of the season ... and don't forget your Uncle Charlie picked those Reds in six or seven games.

Did you know that Commissioner Landis gave Al Schacht (the friend of man) a bad half hour for that Tony Galento beer stunt in the last game of the series? ... Well, he did and if you don't believe Herr Schacht's ears are burning yet, ask him.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.
Tom Meany, New York P. M. "Of all the Dodgers who had such high hopes in the spring, Jimmy Riddle was the only one to get into the world's series, except as a spectator ... and he made it by way of Montreal."

SERIES AFTERMATH.
After all, it's asking a lot of any pitcher to win three games in a world's series, but that big Newsom had almost made it, didn't he? ... You can have your choice of the heroes, but Paul Derringer will take Jimmy Riddle for his ... Most amazed guy in the Reds' dressing room after the final was young Mike McCormick. The kid couldn't bring himself to believe he was on a world's championship team. As the telegrams poured in, Mike could only mumble: "Gee, I haven't seen or heard from fellows I have in ten years. Say, this is a great life, ain't it?"

THAT "POWER" TIE.
Hank Gowdy, the Reds' coach, has a necktie he calls his power tie ... He first wore it the day the Reds put the crusher on the Dodgers for the National league napkin ... He next wore it last Thursday when Bucky Walters hurled the Reds back into the series ... Hank forgot to take it to Detroit, but he had it on Monday and you can bet your life he was strutting around in it Tuesday morning.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY.
One of the brightest stars on one of North Carolina's big football teams had to take a history test to be eligible the next Saturday ... The Prof. asked him one simple question, "What is the capital of North Carolina?" "Pikeville," replied the guy ... "Well, said the academic, "If you had answered correctly you would have had 100 ... Since Pikeville is only 15 miles from Raleigh, I will give you 85 and pass you." (Two days later the fellow told the mail, as usual.)

Crosley Put Reds on Top

Cincy Manufacturer Bought Team In 1934.

CINCINNATI (AP)—You never saw his name in a box score, but the man who really made the Cincinnati Reds the champions of baseball is Powell Crosley, Jr., who likes to have winners in sports as well as in business.

A success in manufacturing everything from cake mixers to automobiles, Crosley purchased the Reds in 1934 when they seemed to have a permanent lease on last place and brought them out of the doldrums by applying the same principles to baseball that he does to business.

Although Crosley owns two radio stations—WLW and WSAI—here and is one of the nation's leading industrialists, his fellow townsmen don't know him well. When Cincinnati thinks of the Reds, it thinks of General Manager Warren Giles and Manager Bill McKechnie rather than of the man who owns the club.

That is because Crosley prefers to stay in the background and let his capable executives run the ball club.

"All right, if you boys want to do it, go ahead," is his usual answer when consulted on matters of club policy.

Fifty-three years old and six feet, four inches tall, Crosley played first base, pitched and caught on an amateur team when he was a boy, but it was only when the Reds began to be permanent contenders that he became intensely interested in baseball.

Pittsburgh Has Two Kings Now

Move over, Billy Conn, there's another boxing hero in Pittsburgh today. He's Fritzie Zivic, member of the famous fighting Zivic family, and new world's welterweight champion following his surprising victory over Henry Armstrong in New York. Zivic is shown, right, with Conn in Pittsburgh. Conn is the light heavyweight champion, but he is campaigning as a heavy.

LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING SCORES

Chalking up big scores against the maples at the Meder Recreation alleys last night was a big task.

Only four keggers were able to come in over the 600 mark as three leagues, the City Class A, and the Westinghouse Class A and B circuits played their weekly schedule.

Walt Fensch of the Merchandise team in Westinghouse Class B set the pace with a 605, while Redhair of the Accounting team had a 604. Harold Selby of the Meder Recreation team in the City league hit a 601 and Heiser, a member of the Refrigeration Machinery club, scored an even 600.

In the team totals, the Bissman company was high with a 2841, scored on games of 952, 898 and 991.

Super Selects Ohio State Over Northwestern Combine

NEW YORK (AP)—Picking Saturday's football winners with a large assist from a crystal ball and a batch of coins to flip:

SOUTH
Mississippi over Georgia a close one, males, Kentucky over Vanderbilt, Kentucky's "dark horse" down south, Texas Christian over North Carolina—the Texas win a battle of passes.
Also: Clemson over Wake Forest; Al. I. over Davidson; William and Mary over V. P. I.; Virginia over Maryland; Tennessee over Chattanooga, Alabama over Howard, and G. Washington over Washington and Lee.

EAST
Cornell over Army—starting off with an easy one, Fordham over Purdue—the Rams have a classy team this year, S. M. U. over Pittsburgh—the Mustangs gallop along undefeated, Michigan over Harvard—by as much as Tom Harmon and Co. want it to be.

MID-WEST
Georgia Tech over Notre Dame this will be the day's No. 1 upset—see hope, Southern California over Illinois—the Trojans finally win one after two successive ties, Ohio State over Northwestern—just a case of too much beef to stop.
Also Iowa over Wisconsin, Nebraska over Indiana; Purdue over

(By Associated Press)
PORT WORTH—Coach Dutch Meyer is taking seven passers in the T. C. U. squad of 35 players making the trip to Chapel Hill for the North Carolina game, indicating that the air will be full of punts. "As I see it, the only requirement for a passing play is to be on the field and in possession of the ball," is Meyer's view.

SOUTH BEND—Notre Dame students prefer to do their sightseeing in the "big town." Asked to vote on what trip they'd like to accompany the team, the student body went 100 per cent for the Nov. 2 game with Army at New York's Yankee stadium.

DETROIT—The Detroit U. T. tans have cooked up a play that should cause scouts — and opponents — a few anxious moments. On this play the center eventually gets the ball and—they hope—

MILWAUKEE—It's not brother against brother, but brother for brother at Marquette. The right tackle berth is held by Chuck Peifer and his brother Jack is his substitute.

PITTSBURGH—Pitt's Panthers are stressing pass defense in the hope they can break down the vaunted aerial attack of Southern Methodist, their opponent here Saturday. The Panthers also sharpened their own passing game, in the event their power drives bog down against S. M. U.'s heavy fast-charging line.

SAVOLD STOPS ANDERSON
ST. PAUL—Lee Savold, 192, Des Moines, Ia., stopped Anne Anderson, 192, Sweden (7).
